Only reason why I gave it 4 stars is because no installation hardware came with the kit.. Which is the correct way to install this cat with out putting the wrong wayThe inlet on the SLP High Flow Catalytic Converter Kit will be the side where the piping has the small cuts to allow stretching, the outlet will be the smooth tubing section.. Im in need of two Thank you Hello, Yes the SLP High Flow Catalytic Converter Kit is a direct fit for the mustang V6 from (96-10), How ever California does not like the high-flow catalytic converters, and unfortunately all the catalytic converters we have are high-flow.. AM price matched it for me and everything I ended up writing an install guide for the cats in hopes to make the installation for others a bit easier.. (I bought 4 for $8)SLP High Flow CatsI had these cats welded on to my bbk o/r x pipe and no complaints at all.. I ended up writing an install guide for the cats in hopes to make the installation for others a bit easier..

3January 11, 2010Overall great product with great customer support AM price matched it for me and everything.. I have the SLP catted x-pipes (item: 23008, MPN# M31032) the cats were damaged Will these be a direct replacement?The SLP High Flow Catalytic Converter Kit is designed for use with SLP X-pipes, so these should work as replacements of your SLP catted x-pipes.. I must have cats to pass emissions The current exhaust on my car is Flow Master.. You either need to have them welded in or you need to purchase 4 exhaust clamps.. Are these cats pretty much standard and will fit my midpipes?I have a 2009 4 0 mustang and am currently looking at exhausts, I am pretty set on purchasing the types true dual exhaust x pipe kit, would these fit with that kit or no ?Hello, I was just wondering if these catalytic coverters will be a direct fit for my 2006 Ford Mustang V6.
